

ABSTRACT

A pad that experiences a high-voltage, high dV/dT signal during normal operation is prevented from falsely triggering by utilizing a
5 bipolar transistor connected to the pad to provide ESD protection, and a MOS transistor connected to the bipolar transistor to turn off the bipolar transistor during normal circuit operation.

10